It Is The Christmas Season. By Whittier.

Since that immortal night went by The whole earth is our Bethlehem, Hosannas ring from every sky! In forest glade, on billowy main, Judea's height, Nebraska's plain, By any shore or mount or sea, Where faith and hope and love abide And self is lost in sacrifice.

There the celestial gates swing wide And heaven descends to human eyes; There Christ, the Lord, is born again There is His new nativity.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Louisa High School will close Friday, Dec. 22, at 3 p. m. for the holiday vacation, and will resume its work again January 2nd at 8, 15 a. m. The first two weeks after the vaca tion will largely be taken up in a re-view of the semester's work and thsemester examinations. The second semester will begin on January 15th. Let me urge everyone who is thinking of taking the second semester work to be present on January 15th and get started with the beginning of the work. To delay a few weeks makes the work more difficult for the student and teacher Classes will be arrang ed for all who come prepared for high school work. We are expecting the largest enrollment in the history of the school. The public is cordially invited to the opening of the second mester on January 15th at 8:15 a.m. S. B. GODREY, Principal

THE CHRISTMAS PICNIC

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE young people were going to give a Christmas pienic on the day after Christmas. They had all decided that it would be no end of fun to take their skates and have a long day of skating, and to have their dinner out of doors,

They felt it would be particularly good for them, too, to get away from the sweets and bollday food they would constantly be nibbling at if they were home.

So on the day after Christmas they went on the Christmus picule and skating party.

They all had so much enthusiasm Everyone was going to take part. Ev pryone was going and work.

But when !! came time for dinner everyone seemed hungry but helpless, and somehow the rold seemed to have glowed in their cheeks and hearts us they skuted but to have numbed them as the work of the picule loomed in

The gay and debonuir young man who called blusself the life of the party and who had come garbed in knicherbockers and sport sweater was much good at making a fire. Instead he seemed to admire binself and his handsome legs and to ignore the open ing of the buskets. To be sure, he looked well and his attitude said quite

"The man who invested knickerbock ers, without E doubt had good booking legs limself, and perhaps an enemwith particularly ugly ones, but he cer tainly didn't get the beiter of me." But Jerry, who was always a good fire builder and men whom the work always rested, despite previous protests that it would not this time, wa the one now who built the fire.

And the rest of the typical piculpeople did the usual things. There was the man who talked about build ing the fire so as to keep the smok from blowing in the faces of every one present.

There was the girl who spake from time to time in alarmed, sudden sen tences, wondering in turn if the sait, pepper, bacon, sugar, milk or coffee pot had been forgotten. There was the girl who was obvious

There was the girl who kept asking. what she could do to help, who would have received any suggestions with a very bad grace.

And there was Milly, who really un did the puckages and cooked the ba con and saw that everyone had enough to est.

The man who said most about not being hongry inquired with more than an academic Interest as to what sandwiches might And there was who spoke from time to time of the good things that could have been brought if only he had

At the Christmas Party.

The wise hostess wishes to prevent her young guests from pairing off and remaining with their escorts the entire evening. To change partners in a novel and entertaining way in the course of the evening, have ready a circle of green cardboard divided into as many sections as there are girls present. Write a girl's name in each division. Now cut out a large red pasteboard star, with a white arrow painted on one of the points, and fasten this star to the center of the cardboard circle by means of a large Each boy in turn comes up and spins the star, and the maiden whose name is indicated when the white arrow comes to rest is accorded him as partner. Of course, if a girl's name has already been chosen the boy must spin again. This spinning star will result in much mirth for the young
